Recommendation: Cutie Cats Café

Submitted by Ariana Lanzer, CLO Summer Hire

Cutie Cats Café is a cute, new café located in Kemang. They serve coffee and a range of baked goods such as cakes, cookies, and cupcakes. While the food is delicious and they know how to make a good cup of coffee, the café is truly popular for being Indonesia's first cat cafe. Right next to the café seating is a room filled with cats of all sizes and colors which customers can feed and play with. The café serves as a comfortable place for cat lovers to hang out with friends and interact with adorable, friendly cats. On weekdays, there is an entrance free of Rp. 50,000 and on weekends, a fee of Rp. 75,000 for the first hour. Cutie Cats and Café only allows 20 people in the cat playroom at a time so booking in advance is recommended. For more information and reservations, contact them directly. Plan your visit with your cats to: Jl. Kemang 1 No. 12F, Kemang, South Jakarta. Email: contact@cutiecatscafe.com Number: 0811 1004560.

Code BROWN! Managing Diarrhea

Acute diarrhea represents one of the most common complaints in developing countries. While diarrhea can be related to many factors (including diet change) it is often the result of an infection with one of a variety of organisms (viral, bacterial or parasitic), contracted by ingesting food or water which has been contaminated with fecal pathogens.

Most people will consider any increase in stool frequency or softening of the stool to be due to diarrhea. Significant diarrhea can be defined as more than four liquid stools in one 24 hour period. Acute diarrhea lasts less than 14 days. Commonly, diarrhea is self-limiting, meaning that symptoms resolve within a few days with no specific treatment required other than adequate fluid replacement. Sometimes, however, diarrhea can be serious or even life threatening (usually because of dehydration) and in this case prompt treatment is necessary.

Prevention of diarrhea

Avoidance of contaminated water and food is the primary strategy in preventing diarrhea. Do not drink water from the tap in countries where it is not deemed safe (such as Indonesia). Tap water that has been boiled for at least three minutes is considered safe for drinking. Eat foods while freshly cooked and still hot. Protect cooked food from flies and other sources of recontamination. Avoid undercooked meat and seafood. Be aware of foods that are difficult to clean such as salads and berries. It can be wiser to choose foods that can be peeled such as bananas and oranges. If you eat 'street food' look for places that serve food in one time use packaging rather than eating off of dishes being washed on site. Remember, effective and frequent hand washing is the most effective way to decrease your risk of diarrhea.

What to do if you have Diarrhea

There are things you can do to manage your symptoms at home to feel more comfortable and to prevent serious illness.

<ul style="list-style-type: none">♣ Drink plenty of clear fluids including water, Gatorade, Pocari Sweat and coconut water (Avoid fruit juices as they can contribute to loose stool)♣ Eat simple foods such as the BRAT diet (Bread, Rice, Applesauce and Toast). Avoid high fiber foods, milk, alcohol and caffeine.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">♣ REST♣ Maintain good hygiene (to prevent spread of infection)♣ Provide a stool sample to the Health Unit if symptoms are acute and/or persistent
---	---

If you have fever, signs and symptoms of dehydration (dry mouth, decreased urine output, sunken eyes, decreased tears), or other symptoms you are worried about, please contact a Nurse or Provider.

From the official site of Jakarta Capital City

Jakarta History

<http://www.jakarta.go.id/eng/news/2011/03/history-of-jakarta>

Jakarta started out as a small port on the estuary of Ciliwung River around 500 years ago. As the centuries passed the port city grew into a buzzing international trade center. Early knowledge on Jakarta has been uncovered, though in bits and pieces, through the many stone tablets that had been discovered in and around the port. Information on Jakarta up until the arrival of European explorers is few at best.

Accounts of 16th century European writers make mention of a city called Kalapa, which apparently served as the primary port of a Hindu kingdom called Sunda, which had its capital at Pajajaran, and was situated approximately 40 kilometers inland, nearby where Bogor nowadays is. The Portuguese were the first large European party to have had made it to the port of Kalapa. The city was later besieged by a young man named Fatahillah, who hailed from a kingdom nearby Kalapa. Fatahillah renamed Sunda Kalapa Jayakarta on 22 June 1527. It's this date that is commemorated as Jakarta's anniversary. The Dutch arrived by the end of the 16th Century and took control over Jayakarta.

Jayakarta was subsequently renamed Batavia. Batavia's swampy environment was similar to that of the Netherlands, their homeland. They proceeded to build canals in order to protect Batavia against potential floods. The city's civic center was situated at a field located about 500 meters away from the port. The Dutch built a graceful city hall as Batavia's seat of government. As time went by, the city of Batavia grew towards the south. Rapid growth brought about accelerated environmental degradation, which forced the Dutch rulers to relocate their governance activities to higher grounds. This area was named Weltevreden. University students in Batavia promoted Indonesian nationalism at the start of the 20th century.

A historical decision came to be in 1928, namely the Youth Pledge, which set forth three ideals, namely one motherland, one nation, and one language of unity: Indonesia. During Japanese occupation (1942-1945), Batavia was renamed Jakarta. On 17 August 1945, Ir. Soekarno proclaimed Indonesia's independence and Indonesia's Heirloom and Venerated Bicolor was hoisted for the very first time. Indonesia's sovereignty was officially acknowledged in 1949. On that very year, Indonesia also became a member of the United Nations (UN). In 1966, Jakarta was granted its official title of Capital of the Republic of Indonesia. It promoted the rate of development of government office buildings and embassies of friendly countries. Rapid development created the need for a master plan in order to regulate Jakarta's growth. Since 1966, Jakarta has steadily grown into a modern metropolis. Cultural wealth along with dynamic growth had key contributions towards Jakarta's transformation into a noted metropolis in the 21st century.

- Was named Sunda Kelapa in the 14th century and was, at the time, a port of the Pajajaran Kingdom.
- Was renamed Jayakarta on 22 June 1527 by Fatahillah (this date has been set as Jakarta's anniversary by virtue of temporary city council decree No. 6/D/K/1956).
- Had for the very first time, under Dutch rule, a city government called Stad Batavia on 4 March 1621.
- Was renamed 'Gemeente Batavia' on 1 April 1905.
- Was renamed Stad Gemeente Batavia on 8 January 1935.
- Was renamed, by the Japanese, Jakarta Toko Betsu Shi on 8 August 1942.
- The Jakarta city government was named the National Government of Jakarta City in September 1945.
- Was renamed Stad Gemeente Batavia on 20 February 1950 during the Pre-federal Government period.
- Was renamed Kota Praja Jakarta on 24 March 1950.
- Jakarta, as an autonomous region, was renamed Municipality of Greater Djakarta on 18 January 1958.
- Government of the Greater Jakarta Capital City Government was formed by virtue of Government Regulation No. 2 of 1961 in conjunction with Law No. 2 PNPS 1961.
- On 31 August 1964, Greater Jakarta Capital City was declared, by virtue of Law No. 10 of 1964, to remain the State Capital of the Republic of Indonesia by the name of Jakarta.

In 1999, by virtue of Law No. 34 of 1999 concerning Jakarta Capital City Government as capital of the Republic of Indonesia, the nomenclature 'regional government' was changed into Jakarta Capital City Government, with autonomy remaining at province level as opposed to the city, and Jakarta Capital City Government was divided into six parts (5 municipalities and the Thousand Islands district).

CLO Summer Hires and Interns Lunch Photos

Last week, the CLO hosted a lunch for the new summer hires and interns. Since most of us work on different floors, it was a great opportunity for all of the new personnel to meet each other while enjoying pizza and other junk food.

The lunch started off with an ice-breaker called 'two truths and one lie' which helped everyone get to know people's names and also a few facts about each individual. This was followed up by the U.S ambassador, Robert Blake, coming in as the guest speaker and describing the roles and logistics of the U.S Embassy in Jakarta.

After hearing the speeches and eating several slices of pizza, we finished off the lunch by playing a few, hilarious games of Telephone-Pictionary. Overall, the lunch served as a great tool to bring together the summer hires and interns and also created a great start for the busy, working weeks ahead.

Pak Slamet has been the driver for my family and me since September 2011.

During that time he has proved himself to be a very safe driver, thoroughly familiar with the roads and shortcuts around Jakarta, very personable and absolutely reliable as an employee. We are leaving Jakarta this month, and Slamet would like to find work with an employer in South Jakarta (e.g. Kemang, FOA, Essence, etc.). If you would be interested in hiring Slamet, please email me at ewdavis@gmail.com or SMS Slamet directly at 0821 2307 2576. He speaks limited English. (6/18)

Great Pembantu available mid June

Ibu Eti might be the most reliable, cheerful, and loyal pembantu in all of Jakarta. In two years, she has never missed a day of work or arrived late. She is always smiling and joyful when she arrives each morning, regardless of how many dishes are stacked in the sink or how much laundry has piled up over the weekend. She has extensive experience serving in expat homes and is highly professional. Ibu Eti loves young children and is very happy (and capable!) to take care of our baby when the nanny is dropping the older children at preschool. She is also very kind and loving to our large black lab. Ibu Eti keeps our busy household of six(!) tidy and is particularly gifted at pressing dress shirts. Ibu Eti will be available to work Monday, Wednesday, Friday 7:00am - 5:00pm and Tuesday, Thursday 7:00am - 1:00pm, or some variation of that schedule based on your family's needs. Ideally, she would like to work at the Shangri-la or the Peak, but is also open other locations. If interested, please contact her directly at 0858-8252-6608. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact us at anneandcasey@gmail.com. (6/11)

Are You the Lucky One? Ibu Nit Available For Hire

Our excellent Pembantu is hoping to work for a new family starting in August. Ibu Nit has been a dream come true for our family of five, plus our little dog. She has worked for us the entire time we've been here. She does not live with us, yet Bu Nit has been 100% reliable and on time each day.
(continues to next column)

She arrives very early to make breakfasts and lunches for our family. She speaks good English. She bakes, grills and cooks all types of dishes very well. She grocery shops. She is happy to work on an overtime basis. Bu Nit is hard working, honest and has a happy/gentle spirit. She has always been sweet to our kids however Bu Nit is not a nanny and prefers to with families who have older children. She does a great job keeping the house clean and happy. We love our Bu Nit. She is one of the people I'll miss the most when I leave Indonesia. She wants to work in the FOA, Dharmawangsa and Galuh areas but will consider others. She's been working for US Embassy families for over 20 years. Please contact Lainie McKeating for more information lainiemckeating@gmail.com (6/11)

Dependable Gardener/Jaga, available late June:

Pak Rubi has worked for us for 5 years, and for other U.S. Embassy families for 8 years before that (references available). He is friendly, honest, and a nonsmoker. He always has a smile on his face. Our yard looks nice. He is quick to answer the gate if there are visitors, and is diligent about security. Willing to work overtime for parties, etc. He knows where to go if you need shoes repaired, a tailor, etc. He rarely misses work. When we go out of the country, he takes care of our house, including feeding the fish. I trust him completely. Limited English. Contact: Blair, 0811-940-2358 or blking@usaid.gov. (6/4)

Good Housekeeper

Ibu Rita has worked for us as a housekeeper for 2 years, and before that has worked for American and Australian employers. She is an excellent housekeeper, efficient and organized. She is also a very good cook. She has a very kind personality, is pleasant to be around, and is honest. She is looking for work as a housekeeper, either part-time or full-time work, with weekends off. She prefers to work in the south, preferably Kemang, Cilandak or Prapanca. She can be contacted by SMS in English or Indonesian at 081310105829. (6/11)

Take the AAFSW Survey Today

The Associates of the American Foreign Service Worldwide \(AAFSW\), a non-governmental organization supporting the American diplomatic community, received a grant from the Una Chapman Cox Foundation for a project aimed at helping individuals and families within the Foreign Service (FS) community more easily access information about FS support groups and resources.

To identify the needs of the community, AAFSW invites you to take part in their short survey. This survey is for foreign affairs agency employees and spouses/partners/MOHs, including retirees, divorced, and widowed FS community members. For more information, contact office@aafsw.org.
