PREFACE

Literacy in a National or foreign language is a two-step skill for those who do not speak it as their mother tongue. If such persons become literate first in their own vernacular, the second step, learning the second language, is much easier, faster, and more enjoyable. It is for this reason that this set of charts and primers has been prepared for the Bilaan people. The Bilaans will cross the bridge into mastery of the Filipino National Language and other languages more easily and quickly if they learn to read their own language first.

The consonants of Bilaan are: b, k, d, f, g, h, l, m, n, ng, s, t, w, y, and glottal stop shown as '. They are pronounced as in the Filipino National language (Tagalog), with the exception of "f", which is pronounced as in Spanish. An unusual contrast exists in Bilaan in that certain words such as sangwas 'to play' are pronounced san.gwas and not, as might be expected sang.was nor sang.gwas. These contrast with other words such as tming gal 'to shoot', in which there is a true ng sound at the end of the first syllable. Since the syllable as in san.gwas occurs, however, only at a boundary between an affix and a word base, and since the number of cases in which it contrasts with an ng.g or ng.w type sequence are relatively few, it is assumed that the symbolizing of this contrast may be omitted without undue ambiguity. Stress always falls on the final syllable of a word base.

The vowels, a, e, i, o, and u, are similar to those in Spanish. There are two additional vowels, a, which is similar to q, but formed farther back in the mouth, and A, the epept vowel, which is pronounced very much like the corresponding vowel in the Pangasinan language.

Alliance Publications wishes to express its appreciation to James and Gladys Dean and Miss Alice Lindquist, of the Summer Institute of Linguistics, for the linguistic work and illustrations of these materials.
